

BNP NEW YEAR MESSAGE 1998

December is normally a slow month for political activity, but the pace of party activity last month actually went up a notch. With the New Year, that pace will be picked up even further as party units everywhere get into their stride for the elections in May. Even comparatively new groups have indicated that they are to be standing candidates at council level.

Spearheading the warm-up campaign are three new leaflets on subjects never covered before and which can only broaden the party's appeal. In the socially disadvantaged inner cities, the party is to challenge Labour as the champion of the working class by focusing on the way in which Labour has betrayed its traditional constituency on the traditional social issues for which it was once held in high regard. The leaflet entitled 'Stop Labour's Attack on the Welfare State' is shown below. A quick reading of the leaflet makes it obvious that the party is stealing some of Labour's better and more traditional clothes. It should win the party lots of new friends and drive the Labour party into a frenzy! Equally obviously, this leaflet is entirely unsuitable for locations outside of depressed inner city areas. For this reason, the party is supplying master copies to accredited branches and groups only, and only if they can show that their areas vote Labour and have a high level of welfare dependency. Examples include Tower Hamlets and Newham in London's East End, Bermondsey in South London, parts of Glasgow, Liverpool and Birkenhead and parts of the North East and South Yorkshire such as Barnsley. An example that would not be suitable would be, for instance, Dagenham in east London. Although the area is solidly Labour, the people are more prosperous and independent. Even so, there are cases where, perhaps one or two estates only would be suitable for this leaflet. Master copies of this leaflet can be supplied with a local address.

The other leaflet, shown right, 'Stop the Race Attacks' serves two purposes: First, it repositions the party in the public mind as the good guys. Who, after all, can argue against the party on this issue? And secondly, it drives home the message that the country really is being sold out from under our own people, since the only political party that cares about our own folk becoming the victims of racial attack is the BNP. This leaflet would also be very useful as a reserve stock for use by party units after just such an attack in any given area. Racial attacks against whites are an increasingly common occurrence in the former cotton towns and in any of the big cities.

The party's third leaflet, which can be seen on the back page and which is primarily designed for rural and small town areas, has already been used in a pre-Christmas and New Year drive by the party responding quickly to the ridiculous sight of Labour banning beef on the bone. This campaign has also been joined in by party units in the cities too, to demonstrate to farmers that in the battles to come, their only worthwhile likely ally in the cities is the British National Party.

STOP THE RACE ATTACKS!

A White boy lies in a coma close to death on a life support machine because politicians have forced an unworkable multi-racialism upon us with all the violence that entails.

FROM THIS TO THIS and all 'thanks' to multiracialism

Little Daniel Moore, aged 12, was attacked by a gang of 20 racist Asians armed with bricks, bottles and lumps of wood. He had been playing football with two friends when the 20 older youths chased the three, screaming: "You pieces of white trash." Poor Daniel couldn't get away and stood no chance as the 20 battered him near to death. It wouldn't be acceptable if whites had attacked an Asian boy and this attack is not acceptable either. While the media took up the story, there was no linking of this attack to others showing a definite trend of attacks against whites. Only four months before this, an eight-year-old in Halifax was racially attacked by three older Asians who beat him, set him on fire and ran off laughing. At the same time in London, 15 white boys playing football, aged 14-16, were attacked by 20 older Asians armed with knives, bottles and axes. More Asians joined in to ensure that the boys could not escape, and horrific injuries were inflicted. There is a near conspiracy of silence in the media about these and other attacks. LAST YEAR NO FEWER THAN FOUR WHITES WERE MURDERED BECAUSE OF THE COLOUR OF THEIR SKIN: Christopher Farrell, Andrew Steventon, Mark Sharp and Danny Westmacott. But the media only talk about the murder of black Stephen Lawrence. Don't white victims count? Is the BNP the only group speaking up for white people and against the violence? Yes! But you'll not be reading that in the controlled media!

The BNP says: stop the racial attacks — ALL OF THEM!

STOP LABOUR'S ATTACK ON THE WELFARE STATE!

Last year, many people voted Labour to rid the country of the Tories and bring an end to their corruption and the misery they imposed. Many hoped that Labour would reverse the cuts that the Tories had made. Now, millions have been disillusioned as it has become apparent that Labour will simply follow the Tories' heartless policies even more brutally. They are getting away with it in a way that the Tories never could, simply because they are Labour.

Old folk have seen hopes of a fairer pension dashed with yet another Labour 'review'. Instead, they were given a £20 sop over the winter to keep them quiet. The scandal is that, since Thatcher broke the earnings-related link with pensions, pensioners are now down £23 per week. OAPs must wonder whether they really did finish on the winning side in the war, when Germany can treat its old folk so much better.

LABOUR'S BROKEN PROMISES

After breaking their promises to pensioners, Labour put the boot into students hoping for a decent education. Labour says that students must take on crippling debt if they want to go on to university. The Labour politicians who say this have already had their free education!

Showing their contempt for ordinary people even further, Labour are punishing widowed and abandoned single parents by confiscating their benefits. The next on the hit-list are the genuinely sick and disabled on sickness benefit. Labour hope that cutting the pittance of these people will rake in even more money than attacking single mums. Welfare to work, is all very well, but there have to be jobs out there in the first place!

For many who voted 'New' Labour, the penny is starting to drop. 'New' Labour = Old Tories; Tony Blair is Tory Blair. Labour are the Tory Party in disguise! The Labour party have abandoned ordinary working people. Labour are more interested in 'gays', ethnics and their rich money-bags backers. The British National Party says it's time to stop wasting £millions on over-paid advisory committees stuffed with Labour councillors, on bogus asylum-seekers, and on foreign-aid handouts. The BNP says: stop the cuts and put our own people FIRST!

On page four readers can see the hysterical reaction to the party coming from The Voice newspaper. The Voice is really concerned that the opportunity exists for the BNP to break through into the big time and emulate the success of the French Front National.

All over the country, the tide of public opinion is turning our way. The new campaigns launched by the party will take the party even further into new territory. The British National Party is the wave of the future but only if the party grasps all the opportunities that it gets. The BNP is doing precisely that and the aim is to win over entirely new constituencies: Labour's now-disillusioned core inner city support; anti-EU ex-Tories in the shires and everywhere, the ordinary white working people of all classes who have been betrayed and left to become the next victim of an anti-white race-hate attack.

The BNP is getting its act together for the new challenges ahead. A three-pronged drive to win our people over is underway. In the cities, in the shires and in the suburbs and towns, the BNP is winning hearts and minds. Tomorrow really does belong to us — but only if we work for it

BACK TO WAR?

The killing of Loyalist Volunteer Force leader Billy Wright inside 'the most secure prison in Western Europe' showed exactly why the so-called peace process has become a farce.

Republican prisoners of the INLA had smuggled to them not one, but two pistols. They then proceeded to climb out of their windows, which have no bars, and onto the roof without being spotted or missed. They then walked along the roof in broad daylight, and dropped down into the compound where Billy Wright was being transferred to the visitors wing before shooting him five times.

Only a few days earlier, an IRA prisoner, Liam Averill, had escaped from the same prison by dressing up as a woman after a Christmas party. Warders didn't notice the disappearance until the 'IRA officer commanding' told them and that was after he had been informed by mobile phone that the escapee was safely over the Irish border!

Even now, a search of the block from which Averill escaped has not been done because warders do not go into the wings without the prisoner's permission! The whole sorry mess could almost be the theme of a Carry On film.

The fact is that the most mind boggling concessions have been made to terrorists over the years. Whoever heard of a high security prison without bars? A prison where warders are not allowed to conduct cell searches? Where mobile phones are permitted? These are things that even fairly low risk catagory 'C' prisons would not contemplate.

The concessions made to the IRA extend way beyond the Butlins-like conditions of the Maze. At the start of the peace process, Sinn Fein/IRA were told that the condition of entry into the talks was a weapons handover. After the IRA went back to violence, they were then told that all they had to do was reinstate the ceasefire. The IRA bombed its way to the peace table.

Already, reprisal killings for Billy Wright have been carried out, and a return to full scale violence is quite possible. Perhaps the IRA sanctioned the INLA to carry out the murder hoping for a loyalist reaction as an excuse to call off the ceasefire. Whether it did or not, the fact is that in a two way dispute over sovereignty, one side has to win and the other lose. Our side, the patriotic unionist side, is being sold out to the republican terrorist side. It is time for the Government to state once and for all that Ulster is, and stays British.

RACE, IMMIGRATION AND EMIGRATION

Just before Christmas, statistics were released which showed that white children are in a minority in inner London.

The figures then purported to show that this was the case in no other borough. Brent and Newham, however, are 40-46 per cent non white. Given the demographics of non white immigration, it beggars belief that non-white children are not also a majority in these boroughs also.

Years ago before political correctness was not quite so entrenched, the local papers would give the statistics of local live births from women of ethnic minority backgrounds, typically under such headlines as 'Immigrant babies tip the scales'. The Stratford Express of March 13th 1970, for example,

LINETTE SPENCER:
Jamaican and proud detailed these births for Newham, and the surrounding boroughs. In Newham 28 years ago, 29 per cent of children were non white.

Of the first eight babies born in Newham General Hospital on Christmas day last month, six were Asian and the other two were either black or white since in these politically correct times the facts are hidden, and only the names given. The Newham Recorder which gave out this joyous news is one of the few papers in the country to actually admit manipulating the news. Given the racial make-up of Newham, it is likely that only one of the eight babies born was white. While this ratio takes time to feed into the figures for all children, it is clearly a nonsense to suggest that a majority of Newham's schoolchildren are still white.

Another piece of research has shown that no less than 38 per cent of black children say that they would prefer to be in an all-black school and this is something that BN goes along with, pending resettlement.

At the same time, the Hackney Black Forum is pressing for an all-black secondary school. While there are such things as all-black and all-Asian schools, usually under the guise of religion (i.e. Baptist and Moslem), there is no way in the present political climate that white schoolchildren will get an all-white school to cater for their rich Western cultural heritage, to foster their unique group identity, or to promote the place of the British historical achievement in the world, an achievement that is second to none.

Obviously, as much as BN would like to see separate schools for British schoolchildren, such is unlikely. But, if blacks and Asians are successful in their efforts to establish their own schools, that must make surrounding schools by the absence of those blacks and Asians, whiter.

AND NOW, SOME GOOD NEWS!

After Mark Loban in Brixton opened a shop to help Black people return to the Caribbean, Linnette Spencer of Bristol is doing the same thing to meet the widespread demand of blacks disillusioned with life in Britain. And this is with no governmental help at all, since the government have a vested economic interest in keeping blacks here to swell the labour pool and depress wage demands, just as that was the prime motivating force to bring them here in the first place.

How many blacks would seize the opportunity to return if governmental help was on offer can only be speculated at, but polls suggest that it would be a majority. That is fully endorsed by the British National Party which understands black feelings of non-fulfilment in a white society. The BNP would offer substantial cash help for blacks to return and there is no doubt that this would be popular among blacks living here.

Linnette says that hundreds of people want to start a new life in their home country. Linnette who came to Britain as a child said: "I've always been a Jamaican at heart. I feel loyal to my country whether I'm there or not. My parents came here many years ago and have always wanted to go back."

The barriers to prevent this include no governmental aid, as it fears a mass exodus. Effectively, for all its cant about equal rights, the government is keeping blacks in servitude. A servitude that serves the financial interests of those controlling the British economy. Most blacks cannot escape this servitude which entitles it to be called slavery!

Linnette is offering a one stop service — everything from travel and shipment to accommodation services, money transfer, information and documents. One meeting of the business attracted more than 300 people.

Commenting on black people returning home, Lloyd Wilks of the Jamaican High Commission said: "This is a growing trend."

DAME EVIL PORTER

Dame Shirley Porter, the evil Tory head of Westminster Council, was last month fined £27 million for her part in the Westminster homes for votes scandal. In addition, Porter's policies were responsible for knowingly sending families into asbestos ridden flats to contract asbestosis.

Branded a liar in court, the Tesco heiress was ordered to pay the money that the Council wilfully lost to pursue electoral advantage. Porter, now permanently resident in Israel, is unlikely to pay up and the government is unlikely to press for her extradition. No senior Tory has publicly condemned her actions.

Film review: Kull the Conqueror The Aryan Barbarian

Kull the Conqueror is scheduled for release next summer. It is based on a series of short stories featuring a hero of that name, written by Robert E. Howard in the 1920s and 1930s. Howard (1906-1936) was a prolific American author of popular fiction. He was also an unapologetic White supremacist and champion of the Aryan race, although that is normally not stressed in the Hollywood versions of his works.

Howard is best remembered for his archetypal Aryan heroes, such as Conan the Barbarian, Red Sonja, and Kull. They are all full-blooded, vibrant and untamed, and their exploits are rousing and violent. A lesser-known Howard creation is the Puritan adventurer Solomon Kane, many of whose blood-splashed tales are set in sub-Saharan Africa.

This locale allows full play for Howard's heroic depiction of the White man. The following sentence is from a passage entitled 'The White-Skinned Conqueror', from the short story Wings in the Night (1932):

'The ancient empires fall... the demons of antiquity gasp their last, but over all stands the Aryan barbarian, white-skinned, cold-eyed, dominant, the supreme fighting man of the earth, whether he be clad in wolf-hide and horned helmet, or boots and doublet — whether he bear in his hand battle-axe or rapier — whether he be called Dorian, Saxon or Englishman — whether his name be Jason, Hengist or Solomon Kane.'

Here, at the moment of ultimate victory, the personal details and characteristics of the Howardian hero melt away, and he becomes one with, and indistinguishable from, all of the Aryan heroes who have preceded him (and also those yet to be born). This mystical sublimation of the individual into the collective soul of the Race is what Guido von List terms 'Aryan internity' in his seminal book, The Secret of the Runes (pp 52-53) — 'internity' being the endless continuity of the racial soul through the blood, just as 'eternity' is endless continuity through time and 'infinity' is endless continuity through space.

In Kull the Conqueror, it would be a mistake to expect too much. We should just be grateful that those who run Hollywood have cast Kevin Sorbo in the title role, and not Jeff Goldblum from The Fly!

Quote

We are continually told that we are a 'tolerant' race. What is really meant is that we are a cowardly race.

We sit back and allow people from the four corners of the earth to come to Britain, trample all over us, get the laws changed to suit themselves, have our freedom of speech taken away from us and then they have the audacity to claim it is they who are being discriminated against!

HOW THE MEDIA SUPPRESS AND MANIPULATE NEWS

Last month provided a perfect example of how the mass media can make important events into 'non-events' simply by suppressing reports of them, or even by doctoring the facts.

In the first case, TV news bulletins during the afternoon and part of the evening of Sunday, December 21st, led in with a frightening story of a shooting in a pub in Birmingham in killer was given.

The next day (December 22nd) we scanned the newspapers for further news of the incident. The most prominent report was given in the Daily Mail, under a headline 'Pub murder horror' (reproduced on this page). There was a much smaller report in the Daily Telegraph but no reports in the other national dailies. In neither the Mail nor and that he was "a 6ft 2in black man."

For the next two days BN staff carefully scanned all the national press — both the 'quality' papers and the comics. There was not a word in any of them about this shooting, though some reported much lesser offences in a few places.

Why did an incident important enough to be the number-one item on

BNP BARRACK ADAMS

The visit by Sinn Feiner Gerry Adams and other terrorists to see the Prime Minister at 10, Downing Street was strongly opposed by about 50 people who took part in a BNP demonstration against IRA violence. Adams and Chief of Staff McGuinness, together with others walked slowly up Downing Street milking the publicity value of the event to the maximum extent before spending an hour with Tony Blair. The BNP demonstration included loyalists from Ulster, several by and motorists, just a few minutes before the Adams team turned up, patriots on the demo had their hearts lifted when the red berets of the Royal Parachute Veterans Association including SAS veterans were seen weaving their way through BNP ranks to get to the front. These fine men proved to be the most vociferous protesters of the day against the government's intended sell out of British people to a foreign power.

First you see them and then you don't — BNP placards left are mysteriously blank. They reappear on the right after a bit of digital trickery of our own.

which one man had been killed and another seriously injured. These bulletins reported that the assailant had got away following the incident and was on the loose somewhere in the city. Nevertheless — amazingly from the standpoint of the safety of local people — no description of the Telegraph reports was any description given of the wanted man.

Later in the day of December 22nd, BN contacted one of its own news sources in Birmingham. From this source it was confirmed that, according to local news, police had taken a suspect in for questioning several TV news bulletins just after it happened become dead and buried a short time afterwards — if not because certain 'establishment' censors decided that it must be covered up?

In the second case, the British National Party held a very successful demonstration just over the road from Downing street on the occasion of the visit to the Prime Minister of Sinn Fein spokesman and terrorist, Gerry Adams. The demonstration against Adams, which was attended by about 50 people had a number of BNP placards prominently placed to let Adams and any passers-by know that he wasn't wanted. In the photograph in The Telegraph, the placards appeared blank. No-one in their right mind would have a blank placard on a demo, so what is going on? Reports from BNP activists present have ascertained that the BNP placards had been blanked out by the media manipulators. Who is doctoring our news. And why?

patriots from the NF and also ex-servicemen from the Royal British Legion. The noisy demo made it plain that the betrayal of Ulster folk would be made known to a wider audience.

A smaller pro-IRA demo waved Irish tricolours. [The IRA have murdered 1,790 people since 1969.] Reports of the party's demo was carried by various national newspapers which typically referred to Adams walking towards the Union flags of the British National Party.

The BNP had a number of placards present showing the party roundal and the slogan: Blair? Blood on his hands. Our man on the megaphone kept up a barrage of slogans to let the terrorists and Labour know what we think of them. Such slogans included: 'New Labour, new treason'; 'Traitors tea party'; 'Keep Britain united' and the ever popular 'No surrender to the IRA'.

As well as support from passers

Earlier in the day, a small loyalist demonstration greeted Adams when he attended a book signing session in Bloomsbury, central London. Only two people were waiting to purchase his book. On a radio interview in the morning, Adams had been confronted by the father of Tim Parry, whose 12-year-old son was murdered in the IRA Warrington bomb atrocity. Adams also praised a convicted IRA murderer who had managed to escape from jail the night before.

Following the demo, BNP officials spoke to the veterans present with a view to maintaining contact and cooperation. The party was also approached by a Ulster Catholic who said he was proud to be both a Catholic and a Unionist - along with 30 per cent of all Ulster Catholics.

Everyone who made it to the demo is thanked, particularly those who travelled a long way. Special thanks goes to Bexley & Dartford Organiser Colin Smith who organised the demo.

Pub murder horror

ONE man was killed and another seriously injured yesterday when a gunman opened fire in a packed city centre pub.

Police broke out when the man began shooting at drinkers enjoying a Sunday lunch-time drink at a bar popular with young people and businessmen.

The two victims, who have not been named, were taken to hospital after the attack. The TV Moon and Sunday Express on the edge of Birmingham's Chinese quarter.

One man, in his 30s, was dead on arrival. It is understood he had shoulder and possibly head injuries.

The other man, in his 30s, was in a serious, though not life-threatening condition last night, following six hours of surgery on what was believed to be a leg wound. Police were waiting to interview him.

The shooting is said to have followed a dispute between a group of people who had been sitting at a table in the pub.

As the shots were fired, drinkers and staff fled out on to the road.

A shocked barmaid said: "Two people have been shot. One is lying on the floor. Another witness said:

Sunday lunchtime drinkers see two customers gunned down over their pints and often attracts businessmen and women as well as youngsters.

The well-decorated drinking spot is filled with paintings and plants, setting off the mainly wooden bar area, around which are arranged high stools.

It would normally be bustling on a Sunday evening.

A spokesman for West Midlands, which owns the pub, said: "It is a shocking incident for the staff and public."

The manager and staff are co-operating with the police and the pub will be shut for at least a day.

Detective Superintendent Malcolm Ross, who is heading the investigation, said the shooting happened at 2.15pm inside the pub at the junction of Fleet Street and Ladywell Walk.

Twenty officers have been interviewing witnesses and forensic and ballistic experts will examine the site today, he said.

The murder weapon has not been recovered and police have appealed for anyone with information to come forward.

Doctors at the City Hospital would not confirm the nature of the victim's injuries, saying only that the survivor was undergoing surgery.

THE TED BUDDEN COLUMN

NO BLOOD — ONLY HOGWASH

As British industry trickles slowly down the drain, we have become accustomed to hearing bad news items on the radio, such as the recent one of the Electrolux Company closing down two factories in Britain to shift production to their other factories worldwide. This bad news is often accompanied by the apparent good news that Tesco or Sainsbury or ASDA are opening new supermarkets that will employ many hundreds. Since the British shopper does not have an expanding appetite or an expanding wallet, the expansion of the supermarkets simply means a loss of jobs in other retail outlets since the market itself is finite.

Of course we are always told that the supermarket chains are cutting each other's throats in a bid to gain our custom and that it is a jolly good thing for us. In fact, of course, they are doing nothing of the sort; they are merely shadowing each other's prices having decided long ago that throat cutting was positively injurious to health, not to mention the profits.

Their throat cutting is rather like one of those stage fights where nobody gets hurt; it's all for show.

And of course the supermarket chains can well afford to invest in expansion. Tesco and Sainsbury operate on a profit margin of around 8% on turnover; a truly massive rake-off. Tesco, having expanded fastest of all and beaten the best of British, decided that it was time to take on the Continentals and show them how to make money. They bought a French supermarket chain and set about making inroads into the French market. Alas poor Tesco. They very soon discovered that French throat cutters actually drew blood and that they were happy to operate on profit margins of around 2%; very far from the cosy 8% that Tesco had become accustomed to. The reaction of Tesco was very much in the tradition of the bulldog breed of grocers — they decided to sell up and get the hell out of there as quickly as possible.

So we may expect Tesco to be confining their expansion to the British market in future. This is the place where nobody gets their throat cut — except for the customer that is.

BLACK PAPER TIPS BNP FOR SUCCESS

Fascist recipe poised ## to boil over Europe

THIS month marks the end of a year-long anti-racism campaign in Europe. It cost taxpayers in 15 countries a mere £3 million but represents the first co-ordinated attempt to combat xenophobia and foster tolerance across the continent.

Highlights of the European Year Against Racism included a north-south charity football match, a Youth Against Intolerance fun-run in Belgium, an anti-racist pop festival in Britain and a European week of anti-racist cinema in France.

Discussion groups, writing competitions and even children's book commemorating the year were equally well-received.

Celebrities, including singer Neneh Cherry and Ingrid Bergman, endorsed the campaign in their roles as official ambassadors, chosen by the European Commission.

Christie said: "Racism destroys lives on a daily basis across the European continent. It has no place in the sort of society that I or my family wish to live in."

Sour

Yet despite the goodwill of Brussels and the support of politicians and celebrities, Europe's year-long battle against racial and cultural intolerance is riding on a sour note.

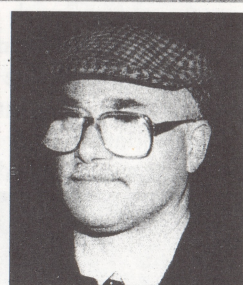

The sudden arrival of gypsies at Dover sparked a right-wing street march in the Kent coastal town and clashes with left-wing demonstrators.

In Denmark, three men are beginning lengthy jail sentences after their convictions for sending letters to high-profile British celebrities involved in mixed-race relationships.

Swimmer Sharon Davies (married to Olympic three-time Derek Redmond) and Paul Ince, Liverpool outbatter and England captain, were two targets.

HARASSED: Lynette Bruno (mother of Frank) received death threats after her phone number was printed in Combat 18 journal Stormer. Derek Beeson, former BNP councillor (right).

Soon after the Danish case, a Southwark Crown Court jury learned the British extremist journal Stormer encouraged the harassment of boxer Frank Bruno's elderly mother.

The magazine printed the address and home telephone number of Lynette Bruno, a 67-year-old lay preacher. The death threats and abusive telephone calls which followed Mrs Bruno to flee her home in fear.

Latest figures published by the Home Office reveal more than 13,000 racially-motivated incidents this year. In London 5,621 racist attacks have been reported to police, a 12 per cent increase on the number of incidents last year. Metropolitan Police analysts claim the increase may stem from a greater willingness to report such crimes but the current trend worries Home Secretary Jack Straw.

"The rise in reported racial incidents shown by latest figures is disturbing," he said.

"Racism in a multi-cultural society is unacceptable. Tackling racism is a crucial issue for every force to ensure good relations between police and communities."

The Home Office statistics underline the continuing threat posed by far-right fanatics. Instead of fed-ing into obscurity in the face of high-profile, anti-racism campaigns, Europe's extreme right-wing movements are growing in confidence.

Many now believe they are poised for a major political breakthrough and in several parts of Europe, the far-right's surge towards political respectability has already taken place.

Jörg Haider's Austrian Freedom Movement is Europe's biggest far-right party. It gained 27.6 per cent of votes in European elections last October.

The National Front (NF) in France boasts 100,000 members and in June 1995, voters permitted it control of three cities - Orange, Marignan and Toulon. Its success is based on careful attention to grass-roots politics.

Italian Fascists in parties such as the Alleanza Nazionale (AN) and the Lega Nord (LN) are pursuing a similar strategy with great reward too. Both were a part of Italy's coalition government for nine months in 1994.

The British National Party (BNP) looks upon the political success of its continental partners with considerable envy.

"The BNP would love to emulate the French NF. The BNP does have hard-core support," says Tony Robson of British anti-Fascist monitor, Searchlight.

Violence

But while its French counterparts have encamped on the main ground of national politics, Mr Robson says the BNP pursues a dual policy of the ballot box and the bully boy.

with large clusters of unemployment.

Spice using widespread dissatisfaction with Tony Blair and the disarray of established parties.

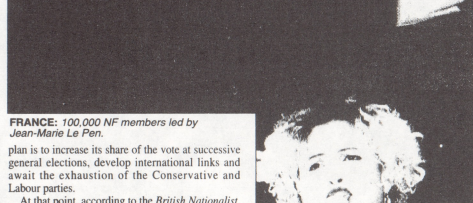

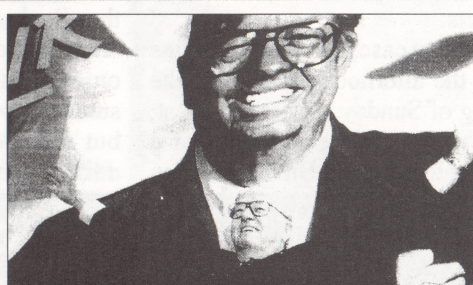

Bring to the boil, gradually allowing for the impact of economic downturn. Then serve the sour brew with a dash of invective against Jews, Black people, immigrants and left-wing groups.

Finally, garnish with populist sound-bites identifying who is to blame for the country's problems and what needs to be done to set matters right.

Election

This is the blue-print at the heart of the BNP's attempt to create a mass political movement.

"Now that the election is behind us, the really important business begins - that of organising ourselves for the next phase of our struggle," states a recent edition of the British Nationalist, the BNP's newspaper.

FRANCE: 100,000 NF members led by Jean-Marie Le Pen plan to increase its share of the vote at successive general elections, develop international links and await the exhaustion of the Conservative and Labour parties. At that point, according to the British Nationalist.

Early last month, Britain's Black newspaper, The Voice carried a double page spread warning of the 'dangers' posed by the BNP. The shock revelations, appear to have been culled from the pages of British Nationalist over the last few months as BN has reported upon the party's efforts to capitalise upon its excellent General Election and to continue the process of repositioning the party to expand its constituency even further (see page 1 & 8!).

Just as party leaders can see the tremendous opportunities that lie ahead, so too can the party's enemies. Readers of BN can expect more shock horror 'The BNP is getting its act together' stories over the next few months.

The article starts by looking at statistics for racial attacks before getting down to study the obvious signs of nationalist success on the continent. After dismissing the BNP's election results in May as 'dismal' (More 'dismal' results like that please!) it then warns of the dangers (cue scary music) and continues: 'Mix a generous amount of political instability brought on by the drive towards a federal Europe with large clusters of unemployment. Spice using widespread dissatisfaction with Tony Blair and the disarray of established parties. Bring to the boil, gradually allowing for the impact of economic downturn. Then serve the sour brew with a dash of invective against Jews, Black people, immigrants and left-wing groups. Finally garnish with populist sound bites identifying who is to blame for the country's problems and what needs to be done to set matters right.'

Not long after the paper appeared, statistics were revealed which showed that one-third of Britons are 'racist' - a similar profile as that of the Germans, although with the French and Austrians well out in front as to knowing what is best for their respective countries.

THE LEFT IN BRITAIN TODAY — TERRORISTS

The end of last year was notable for several things, particularly for the picture to emerge, of which the BNP knows only too well, of a significant minority of the left to have swung decisively behind terrorism.

Hunt goes on Boxing Day were assaulted by the left's balaclava bovver boys and three editors of Green Anarchist magazine were sent down for three years for incitement to commit criminal damage.

Just a week earlier, Barry Horne a member of the anti-British Socialist Workers Party (SWP) was jailed for 18 years. Police regarded Horne as so dangerous that a team of 50 officers watched him 24 hours a day for more than six weeks. A member of the Animal Liberation Front he caused a fire on the Isle of Wight costing £3 million and had been jailed before for violent disorder and possessing explosives.

Acting alone to reduce his chances of being caught, Horne reconnoitred his targets, bought and assembled the firebomb components himself before planting them to cause huge destruction. He was caught before three incendiaries that he planted in Bristol could go off.

Like others of his ilk, Horne had a fanatical hatred of the BNP and white people in general since whites are the main cause of environmental damage!

The three editors of Green Anarchist — Sax Wood, Steve Booth and Noel Molland apparently believed that it was lawful to urge their readership to sabotage businesses and cause widespread damage in pursuit of their political objectives.

Like Horne, they believed themselves untouchable. They were wrong. The most visible sign of the leftist violence was, however, on Boxing day when 40 thugs armed with baseball bats and coshes pounced on two hunt meetings and proceeded to smash car windows, cutting occupants and to attack anyone who interfered. One ex-RN man was beaten with a bat and left with three broken ribs and another was coshed in the face with an iron bar.

● More than 200 of the public sector union UNISON's branches are effectively run by the extremist SWP and Militant (now called Socialist Party). General Secretary Ron Bickerstaff has said that hard left groups have siphoned off thousands of pounds of members money. Police have arrested one man after finding pornographic and racist material from a bogus group called White Rage. The material from White Rage was part of a scam to justify an anti-racist campaign. UNISON branches regularly break the law by placing adverts in local papers advising people not to vote BNP.

was all for the working class — and for helping vulnerable and sick people. I am beginning to think otherwise about Tony Blair and Co. I was forced to take early retirement on the grounds of ill health. For the Labour party to now consider taxing or means-testing incapacity benefit is disgusting.

Keith Jackson, letters, The Mirror.

I and my family have been Labour voters for as many years as I can remember. When Labour won the election we were overjoyed. Labour used to stand for the underdogs, the sick, old and disabled.

With what we have seen since Labour got in, there are no differences between them and the Conservatives. Mr Blair and Mr Major are from the same mould... If Labour carry on as they are they may be in for a shock at the next election.

J. Greasby, letters, The Mirror.

I'm having great difficulty distinguishing between the old Tories and new Labour.

B. Booth, letters, The Mirror.

Gypsy families fleeing to Britain say they love it here because "It's a free country." It might be free to them, but it's costing us a fortune.

The Mirror.

Monetarism... should be placed in its real context: as a form of consensus politics [embraced by New Labour]. The result is a gaping void in British politics. It is the territory first identified by Disraeli, then colonised by Labour, pillaged by the Tories, then evacuated by Blair. It is the protection of the working class.

Alan Clark MP, New Statesman.

It took the New York index 86 years to reach 1,000 points, five months to leap from 7,000 to 8,000 in July. The irrational took centre stage in the financial a long time ago, shifting it far away from economic reality.

Le Matin, Switzerland.

The doctrine of multiculturalism in schools is becoming a threat to the stability and well being of British society. In many state schools, British culture and history and the Christian religion have been downgraded to the point where they are regarded as an embarrassment.

The Telegraph.

If Tony Blair really intends to give this country an honest referendum, which I believe would result in a massive NO, why is he planning to spend £10 billion preparing Britain for a single currency?

F. Perchard, letters, The Sun.

Westerners are hoist with the petard of their own beliefs; because we think we believe so strongly in tolerance and in equality, we are forced into impossible positions. The hard truth is that we can only believe in tolerance up to a certain point; beyond that point it self-destructs, making a nonsense of the idea of tolerance as a belief. The even harder truth is that equality has proved to be an empty idea.

Minette Marrin, Sunday Telegraph.

There was even more rejoicing in Brussels than in Glasgow over Scotland's devolution vote. As enthusiasts for Scottish independence openly acknowledged, this all accorded with the master plan to break up Europe into regions, relating directly to Brussels, as a way of marginalising national governments.

Both Scotland and Wales are already earmarked on Commission maps as 'Euro-regions', while England is broken up into eight regions: Northern, North East, North West, East and West Midlands, East Anglia, South East and South West. In due course these will also be given 'elected assemblies', and the break-up of the UK will be almost complete. The idea is that the more Europe can be split up in this way, the more the need to run centrally those services which the new regions are too small to run on their own — common defence and security forces, judiciary, not forgetting a common currency.

Of course when one puts all this in a newspaper one risks being accused of 'paranoid xenophobia'. But then the vocabulary of abuse of our Europhile friends when one catches them out in what they are really up to has always been strangely limited.

Daily Telegraph.

I always thought the Labour party

LABOUR ATTACK THE DISABLED

Thinking the unthinkable on welfare reform has led Labour to adopt lock, stock and barrel the key points of Tory think tank ideas, but which were shelved because they were deemed politically unacceptable. Tory Blair, as he is known thinks otherwise and his minion, Harriet Harman is, with his blessing, leading the assault on those who cannot defend themselves.

No-one likes the idea of scroungers any more than BN, but attacking single mums and confiscating their benefit is medieval in its barbarity. Other money saving ideas are to charge disabled people VAT on items they need like white sticks and zimmer frames.

War widows pensions are another target as is sickness benefit itself, now known as incapacity benefit. Labour plan to confiscate the extra entitlement that the genuinely sick and disabled receive and which pays for things like mobility and even home helps.

That a Labour government is doing this is not to be wondered at. A Tory government would never have contemplated it because of the political repercussions. The reason why Labour hope to get away with it is because they are Labour.

The welfare state, NHS and pensions are to go. Wage levels will fall and good jobs will go, to be replaced by 'have a nice day' jobs in McDonalds. That is the future under Labour, Tory and Lib-Dem.

The welfare reform part of this nightmare has its Labour critics. Education Secretary David Blunkett wrote to Chancellor Gordon Brown whose cuts threaten so many and said: 'I was not elected to be a spokesman for the disabled. But nor was I elected to kick them in the teeth.'

So heated has the debate over benefit cuts to the disabled that disabled protesters threw red paint over the gates of Downing Street and hurled themselves out of their wheelchairs and onto the pavement. Others chained themselves to the gates. The spectacle of protests like this against a Labour government in the wake of Labour's landslide win would have been almost unimaginable. Now, millions of Labour voters have been disillusioned. Tory Blair's Labour party seem keen to vie with Thatcher's Tories as the most unpopular government in living memory.

As Labour's unpopularity grows, a vacuum is developing which the Tories cannot fill since Labour are merely fulfilling Tory policy! Thus a golden opportunity beckons for the British National Party to present itself as the champion of the British people.

THE HOMELESS — POOR WHITE AND UNEMPLOYED

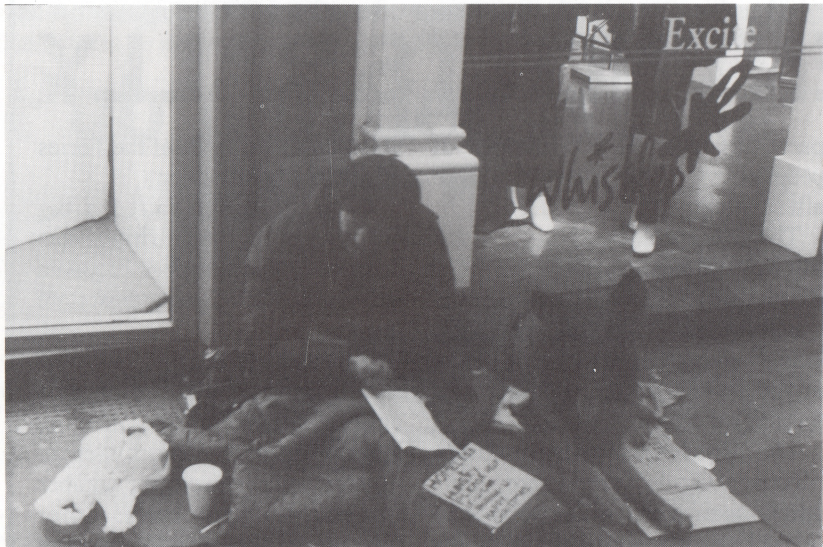

Just before Christmas, John Prescott made a much publicised initiative to house the homeless by opening Admiralty Arch to the homeless.

We are constantly told that we are a racist society. So why is it that the homeless are almost exclusively white?

Mercifully for the homeless, this Christmas has been fairly mild. When it is not corpses have had to be collected from the usual haunts of the homeless

Four years ago, St. Martins in the Fields held a service in memory of the millionth reported death on our streets. And people raise money for the Third World!

LABOUR BREAK NHS PLEDGE

Labour has broken its best known election pledge — that of reducing the waiting list on the NHS. Labour which made such a song and dance about being the 'friend' of the NHS has watched while those on the waiting list have soared 50,000 since the election to 1.2 million. More than 57,000 of these have been waiting more than a year. Labour had said that it would reduce those on the list by 100,000. Like everything with Labour: talk is cheap. The so-called patients charter is in tatters and thousands are waiting for treatment in pain, very often with their conditions worsening as a result of the wait.

Now that it has been caught out in its broken promises what has Labour done to remedy the mess? Why! It has made yet another pledge to cut the waiting lists. (The number of issues that Labour have ducked by putting them out to review now number more than 100).

DRUG STRAW

Home Secretary Jack Straw suffered embarrassment just before Christmas when his son William was caught out supplying cannabis to a journalist. Straw who is said to be tough on drugs and tough on parental responsibility was shielded for a fortnight by the Attorney General who sought an injunction to prevent newspapers revealing the identity of the young drug dealer. Only after his identity had been revealed on the Internet and published in Scotland did the Crown drop its attempts to spare Straw embarrassment.

MURDER IN NOTTINGHAM

Many readers will have read reports of a teenager murdered by a gang in Nottingham. It emerged that the gang was black. BN feared the worst — another race murder — and immediately put its agents into the field to find out more about this wicked killing. It turned out that the murdered boy was also black and not white as many first thought. Police suspect the killing, described as: "absolutely merciless, as nasty as it could get." was gang and drug related.

BN BRIEFING

IMMIGRATION FILE

Italians have reacted in horror to the largest landing of illegal immigrants by boat in years. 796 illegals pitched up in a small Lebanese boat in the south. After a brief interrogation they were served with a deportation order, but released and allowed to go because Italy has no legal mechanism to deport anyone at all! Italy has just joined the 'no controls at frontiers' Schengen agreement. The refugees — Kurds, Pakistanis and Egyptians are destined for Germany and Britain.

● Elsewhere, another 150 have landed in Italy from Albania. These too will be freed.

● 5 illegal immigrants drowned and 16 were missing, presumed drowned in two dinghies attempting to cross rough seas between Albania and Italy.

● Mexican police discovered 173 illegals packed into a lorry hidden among crates of detergent. The illegals from Guatemala, Honduras and El Salvador were on their way to the USA.

JUDGES ON THE SQUARE

The Government's drive to keep tabs on organised freemasonry by keeping a register of known masons is to be voluntary. Only those new recruits to the police, Crown Prosecution Service and magistrates must declare. Judges are exempt from the new register.

G'DAY IS 'RACIST'

A Yorkshire schoolboy has been ticked off for 'racial mimicry' in greeting an Australian schoolmate with the traditional Aussie "G'day sport". The lad has received 'counselling' so that it never happens again!

MUSLIMSTO DOUBLE

The number of Muslims in Britain will double within just 22 years. This is because 70 per cent of Muslims are under the age of 25, which will lead to a population explosion according to the Runnymede Trust.

Sir,
As the debate about fox hunting is topical, it is time to consider the appalling and widespread scandal of Muslim 'halal' meat. The poor sheep is dragged into a small cage in a state of terror having seen others been killed and the cage inverted. The helpless animal's throat is then cut without any pre-stunning and left to bleed to death in agony. Bleeding to death for five minutes is common in this barbaric religious ritual slaughter.

The same religion led to the deaths of 70 tourists in Egypt, an act possibly planned in this country thanks to ridiculously liberal asylum laws. The sooner these barbarous practices are removed from our soil, the sooner we can start to call ourselves a humane society.

P. Hart, London.

Sir,
A student at a Leicester College recently remarked to her teacher as having had a 'brainstorm'. Whereupon, the teacher said: "You can't use that description because it's racist."

When the student asked for an explanation she, along with all the others was told that it's offensive to mentally handicapped people. So now you know, the mentally handicapped are a racial minority as are West Indians & Asians etc. No wonder our youngsters leave school and college in a state of confusion.

Sir,
Muslim fundamentalism is a danger that springs from the Islamic faith. In Algeria 80,000 have been killed by these fanatics since 1992; Turkey has sentenced 20 to death for their part in terrorism; Egypt has seen 100 tourists killed by these same fundamentalists. While it is true that all these atrocities have occurred in foreign lands, Islam is the fastest growing religion in Britain, not least through its extraordinary birthrates. With fundamentalism growing within Britain's Mosques and Muslim demands for Muslim MPs and councillors, it is certain that large areas will become controlled by these people. At that point, the standards of Islam will apply to Britain.

NEW BNP LEAFLETS

All these children would be alive today if our spineless politicians had the guts to declare war on the paedophiles

Clockwise from top left: Susan Maxwell, Caroline Hogg, Sarah Harper, Sophie Hook, Daniel Handley and Karen Griffin. The killers of all these children were either known or convicted paedophiles — like dozens of other child-killers. How many more must die before something is done? Only when we lock away the perverts who prey on our children, removing them from society completely, will our streets and playgrounds be safe again. And for paedophiles who kill their victims, the only just punishment is the rope!

MEDIA DYNAMITE!

Two new party leaflets have been drawn up to capture public support using a different style of leaflet to that used in the past. These two new leaflets are 2-sided A4 in one colour and to help promote distribution as much as possible, the party has obtained a special printing deal to keep prices very low!

The issue of paedophilia or child molesters to give them their common name is big news around the country. Sex beasts are being routinely 'outed' and demonstrations are occurring against them. This is the leaflet to set the topic alight and give any BNP branch almost

THEME-PARK BRITAIN

How 'politically correct' townies are killing our country

ANOTHER farmhouse lies derelict, either to fall down or to become a yuppie weekend cottage. Yet another family swallowed up in the city, while more and more farms every year are taken over by city speculators, while village schools, pubs and shops become holiday homes. Rural Britain has been systematically neglected and depopulated by a system based on city 'values' and short-term greed. What has this got to do with Field Sports? Everything!

Our masters in Westminster and the media have forgotten that a healthy countryside is the backbone of a nation. Their only concern is to preserve a few pretty bits as a summer theme park and tourist trap. The idea of a rural Britain which stands on its own feet, which has its own industries, traditions and sports actually frightens our urban masters, because it doesn't need them. They need our taxes, but rural Britain doesn't need the parasites in parliament.

Whitehall and the TV studios 'help' make these power-junkies uneasy. That's why they love the 'under-privileged, multi-racial inner-cities' and it's why they hate the real people of rural Britain.

That's the real reason for their attack on country sports. Animal 'welfare' doesn't come into it. If it did, they'd do something about the scandal of ritual and kosher slaughter, whereby hundreds of thousands of animals every year are slowly bled to death without any pre-stunning, in ways which would land any other slaughterman in prison. But the Labour Party and most 'animal welfare' fanatics turn a blind eye to this 'religious' savagery, just as they ignore the huge numbers of lambs taken by foxes and badgers. After all, cuddly foxes are politically correct, whereas native Britons, and our traditions and livelihoods don't count. We only built this country, we only pay the taxes — so we don't count!

As a matter of fact, the masters of urbanised Britain don't give a damn about foxes either. If they did, they wouldn't be so keen to condemn them to slow death by poison, habitat-destruction and gangrene from bullet wounds (where are they going to find 'marksmen' in a country where they've outlawed target shooting?). What they really care about is destroying our identity, our sense of belonging, our nationhood. To hundreds of thousands of Britons, their sense of identity is inextricably bound up with hunting or other field sports — that's why they're the latest target.

That's also why weather forecasters don't use temperatures which actually mean something any more. That's why you can't buy pre-packed potatoes by the pound any more. That's why the county regiments have been amalgamated out of existence. That's why our kids come home from school knowing more about 'colonial exploitation' in Africa than about our own history. That's why TV soaps portray homosexual perversion as acceptable, even preferable. That's why our cities (because British people there are targets too) have been filled with hideous tower blocks and with strangers from every part of the globe. That's why our political and economic freedoms are being submerged in a European super-state. That's why they won't leave anything alone.

What we are facing is the organised destruction of our identity and freedoms by an out-of-touch but immensely powerful political and media elite. It can only be stopped, let alone reversed, when large numbers of ordinary Britons unite and organise to resist and reverse the process — when we British organise to take back control of our own country. That's the purpose of the British National Party.

guaranteed publicity with the party's strong, yet popular stance of advocating capital punishment for the sex monsters.

The other new A4 leaflet offered is the new Countryside leaflet, looked at in August BN, and which is more appropriate for rural areas since it is aimed at country folk. In this leaflet, the point is made that the country folk are under attack just as are the townies.

The party spells out its policies to regenerate the countryside, provide jobs and maintain the rural way of life.

Both leaflets are price £10 per thousand with postal charges of £6.40/1,000 and £8.55/2,000.

Because of the 'hassle-free' nature of both of these leaflets they are particularly suitable for isolated individuals who wish to leaflet their communities and get the word out where it may never have been heard before.

To assist that, prices on smaller quantities are as follows: £5.00/500 plus £5.15 p&p; £2.50/250 plus £2.50 p&p; £1.00/100 plus 95p p&p.

NEW AUDIO TAPE

The first of a new series of audio-tapes produced by the British National Party. It consists of two recorded studio talks by BNP Chairman John Tyndall. These are: The BNP: a movement for the new century — an exposition of the main BNP policies; and Time For Action! — a summons to the lazy and apathetic to stir themselves and get involved. £6.00 plus 36p p&p.

NORTHERN TRAINING SEMINAR

Last month saw the last of the year's new style seminars, this time in Leeds.

The audience of forty very enthusiastic and committed members were keen to hear what the seminar speakers had to say and put up with some delay and ultimately the termination of the seminar in adverse circumstances. None of this phased the audience which simply moved off from the seminar venue to a local hostelry for a social evening. Indeed, one man from Sheffield joined the party on the strength of the days events!

The proceedings started with the audience divided up into small teams to think of ways to help the BNP in the coming months and for one member of each team giving a short talk detailing their conclusions.

This part of the seminar is particularly useful for finding out what members are thinking and also to encourage members to voice their ideas. In addition, the experience of completely untried new members and supporters articulating these ideas is good, not just for the way in which it gives practice in speaking — many of those who did speak wouldn't have thought that it was something that they could do, but it was also a good confidence builder, a key point of personal development and again, not just for those that spoke, but also for those that didn't since all present realised that everyone was in the same boat with regard to being inexperienced at speaking to others and developing ideas for presentation.

The points arising from the presentations were dealt with before Senior Steward Paul Henderson gave

EXCELLENT NOTTS RALLY

On Sunday November 30th, a well attended rally in Notts of fifty people heard BNP speakers urge a big increase in activity to develop the party in the area.

Members and the many new supporters present heard the first speaker, a prominent local businessman, urge an end to the discrimination against whites by the Council in Nottingham and showed the crowd a council produced anti-racism leaflet which portrayed the BNP as the main vehicle for 'race hate' in the area. Its vile attack on the

the first talk about aspects of security.

Following Paul's interesting and insightful discourse, Tony Lecomber gave the presentation on elections. An overview of the party's electoral history, why the party contests elections and what the party hopes to achieve all figured in the talk along with key points to follow in this May's coming elections so as to maximise the party's vote.

It was at this point that no fewer party has misfired as a number of people have enquired into the BNP after having read the leaflet!

The next speaker, Andy Wearden of Rossendale BNP told how Rossendale's activists had concentrated upon local community leaflets and achieved a large measure of success. He urged Notts activists to adopt the same tactics.

The final speaker was Eddy Morrison who delivered a hard hitting attack against the sham politics of 'New Labour' and highlighted how fragile the system really was by the than ten police vehicles arrived in the venue car park prior to the police shutting the seminar down well ahead of schedule. Readers should ponder on this. What kind of society is it where the police close down an entirely peaceful election preparation meeting of a perfectly law abiding and legal opposition political party?

Where exactly is the dividing line between 'democracy' and dictatorship?

almost total collapse of the Tories after the May election.

A dutch auction raised a big collection half of which was donated to Publicity For Freedom in Nick Griffin's fight against state oppression.

A measure of the BNP's appeal is the growing number of high calibre supporters the meeting attracted, including business professionals as well as a number of young men from other nationalist parties and who are showing their support for the BNP.

As mentioned before, party members and supporters went on to enjoy a social evening and it emerged that the most likely reason for the Stasi-like police operation was concern among senior officers over the growing contacts between the BNP and white communities living in a state of virtual siege as a result of attacks on whites by Asians in parts of Yorkshire.

FOREIGN NEWS

AFRICA

Robert Mugabe, the failed and incompetent President of Rhodesia, now called Zimbabwe is to confiscate the good arable farming land that exists from white farmers and hand it over to black ex-terrorists as a reward for helping to end white rule in the early 1980s.

Much more likely is that the land will go to party functionaries as well as to the President himself. Land confiscation is a well practiced type of robbery in the new Zimbabwe.

Under white rule, Rhodesia was the bread basket of Africa, regularly exporting food to its neighbours in spite of sanctions. One of Mugabe's first actions was to sell off emergency stockpiles of grain designed to see the country through hard times so as to earn foreign exchange. The next drought that hit the country saw widespread famine.

The white ruled parts of Africa are no more and the continent is sliding back into chaos, and in this case, famine.

BNP DEMONSTRATES AGAINST STATE-SPONSORED OPPRESSION AND FOR FREEDOM AND DEMOCRACY

In the week of Nick Griffin's trial for thought crimes against the multi-racial state, the party held two demonstrations in London against the hypocrites of the so-called 'freedom' organisations Liberty and Amnesty International.

Amnesty, very keen to intervene when the democratic freedoms of Nigerians are at stake was strangely reluctant to offer any help to Nick when he wrote to them outlining the government's attack on freedom of speech, and its policy of jailing its political dissidents. Jailing those with whom one disagrees politically is a hallmark of corrupt and evil dictatorships usually found overseas. Foreign Secretary Robin Cook has loudly criticised the Burmese authorities for exactly this crime. Of course, Britain does exactly the same in direct contravention of the European Convention on Human Rights.

Thus staff at A.I. were both surprised and embarrassed when a small team of eight BNP activists turned up outside its offices near Finsbury Town Hall to denounce Amnesty's biased stand on Human Rights.

Placards held said: 'Amnesty Looks The Other Way'; 'Free Speech afterwards that they wouldn't have credited the response received unless they had seen it for themselves. Cars tooted, passers-by gave thumbs up, two lads cheered and roared out: 'England for the English' and there was no mistaking the BNP since the 'Rights For Whites' placard was always prominent. Every car toot and show of support was greeted loudly by the BNP team which would have been heard by all A.I.'s workers, who must have been sitting in their offices cringing with embarrassment. Every passing bus got the slogan and placard treatment. Hundreds knew of the party's presence and only one person expressed disapproval — a cyclist who wobbled and almost crashed

...and outside the offices of Liberty

Now'; 'Rights For Whites', as well as the festive(?) 'Amnesty? Bah Humbug!'

The noisy demonstration was timed to coincide with their worker's lunch hour and shouted slogans which underlined the placard slogans severely discomfited them. Amnesty officials looked distinctly embarrassed as they were roundly abused as "Collaborators of Oppression." They shuffled their feet, looked at the floor and hurried in and out quickly to avoid public opprobrium. What, after all, could they say?

Greatly encouraging was the public response to the BNP demo. In fact, the activists concerned agreed as he turned to give party activists the finger!

A.I.'s office manager came out to talk with party activists and heard for herself why the BNP was picketing the office. After which, she asked if there was a petition to give in — obviously hoping that after handing in the petition, the party members would leave. Her hopes were dashed when she was told that there was no petition and that: "We're here solely to embarrass you." Several passing office workers stopped to ask what the demo was about and one office worker marched in to A.I.'s office to give them a verbal slating for ignoring Nick's case. A delivery truck driver even stopped to chat because he wanted to join! As said before, the public reaction to the demo was fantastic.

The next day saw another party team out to repeat the previous day's performance this time against the offices of Liberty. Unfortunately, the Liberty office is tucked away down a dingy backstreet and so there was less passing traffic and so less of a public response. But what response there was, was good. The highlight of this demo was the appearance of Liberty spokesman, John Wadham who heard out the reason for the protest and then attempted to justify Liberty's bias in ignoring human rights abuses by saying that a vote of the membership in the mid 1980s had decided not to offer support to anyone charged with 'incitement to racial hatred'. Quite apart from the fact that this was a decision to show bias, democratically arrived at or not, Mr. Wadham didn't appear to know that Nick Griffin, the man facing up to two years in jail for saying "Wanted: more white children" was in fact at that meeting as a member of Liberty and had been denied an opportunity to speak! Furthermore, Wadham didn't appreciate that like the Soviet Union which used its criminal law to criminalise its political opponents, Britain is doing exactly the same! The discussion finished when Wadham suggested that party members join Liberty to put these views across, to which the BNP team leader said that he couldn't possibly join and be associated with such a fundamentally undemocratic organisation such as Liberty!

WAKEFIELD BNP RELAUNCHED!

After a number of years inactivity, a Wakefield group of the party has been restarted, reflecting the general upswing of support for the party throughout Yorkshire. A small group of initial supporters have started distributing literature in the city and a local newsletter, Wakefield Patriot has been launched. Any supporters keen to lend a hand in the Wakefield/Osset/Normanton areas should write in to Wakefield BNP c/o PO Box BR10, Leeds LS13.

BNP SIDE WITH FARMERS IN BUY BRITISH CAMPAIGN

Just before Christmas the party was out leafleting Christmas shoppers on the need to buy British beef and ridiculing Labour's totalitarian habit of banning things. Beef on the bone is the latest casualty in the government's manic mood of population control. Never mind that you have a better chance of winning the national lottery four weeks running than catching human variant CJD (mad cow disease).

Up and down the country, party activists leafleted shoppers to a very good response. In Wales (Chepstow and Newport), in London, in the Midlands — in fact, all over — the leaflets went out in a short notice concerted campaign to convince shoppers and farmers that the BNP are for them. In London, BNP activists took in supermarkets and shopping centres in north, south and east London. Outside one supermarket — Sainsbury's of Camden Town, party activists found themselves leafleting a Welsh hill farmer visiting relatives. At first, like many others, he probably thought that the party team was from the Meat Marketing Board. Reading down the leaflet he realised his mistake, turned round with a broad grin and gave a thumbs up!

In Winchester, a party member spoke to protesting farmers about the need to protect our way of life from the concerted attack being made upon it and about how they were recent converts to this having given it little thought before. "You must be laughing at us now" said one farmer. "No, the situation is too serious for that, it's more important to realise

BUY BRITISH BEEF — BEFORE IT'S TOO LATE

DID you know that you've got a better chance of winning the jackpot on the Lottery four weeks running than of catching CJD? That several victims of this mysterious disease which we are told is caught from beef have been vegetarians? Or that herds in many European countries are riddled with Mad Cow disease, while our farmers have reduced the disease here to virtually zero?

But in spite of this, the Government has launched an hysterical attack on Britain's beef farmers and butchers, and on your right to choose. The fact that British beef is among the best and safest in world doesn't seem to bother the busybodies. Yet the ban on the sale of traditional cuts of beef on the bone, plus the suggested restrictions on lamb, are not only unnecessary but are also another deadly blow to our farmers.

Here are a couple more facts you may not know: the average income of livestock farmers fell 49 per cent last year, and the average income of a British hill farmer is just £7,000 per year and falling.

British farmers face disaster. So what's it got to do with you? Plenty! If they go under, the countryside which you enjoy on day trips and holidays will be replaced by a monotonous landscape of giant prairie farms owned by a few giant corporations. You will lose the right to choose the superior safety, quality and taste of naturally-grown British meat. Your tax bill will rise to pay for pensions and social security for farmers forced into early retirement or on to the dole.

Worst of all, it will be another nail in the coffin of Britain as a free and independent nation. We've lost six million manufacturing jobs since 1979. Our coal industry has been almost wiped out. Our fishing grounds have been handed over to Europe and our own boats are being broken up. And now it's the turn of the farmers — another step on the road to a deindustrialised Britain only able to beg for scraps from Brussels.

Yesterday it was the miners and steel workers; today it's the farmers and fishermen; tomorrow — it could be you! So make a stand for Britain. Today, and from now on, don't buy your beef at the supermarket, it's much more expensive and they don't care where it comes from. Go to a proper butcher and ask him for a piece of real British beef. You'll please your family, and you'll also be helping to keep the British countryside and the farming industry alive.

our common cause and support each other", she said.

All over the country, people are starting to discover that the party has more to say than on the race issue even though that is itself very important. As a result, the party is broadening its appeal and expanding into new areas. This is evidenced by the high enquiry rate from farmers on this low volume leaflet. Units that haven't done so should obtain supplies by ringing Head Office, and units that have done so should consider mailing them out to farms from which the party has had much success, particularly in Wales.

SOUTH WALES BNP REFORMED

Following an inaugural meeting and a series of successful activities, the party has relaunched itself in South Wales. Under new leadership, the party hopes that, at last, the BNP can stake a permanent hold in this depressed part of the UK which is crying out for radical political measures the like of which only the BNP can provide.

the UK at a time when Foreign Secretary Cook has been lecturing other nations about their human rights abuses, lack of democracy and free speech! This kind of shabby hypocrisy needs exposing. Left-leaning civil rights groups in Britain are ignoring this case and so it's up to the BNP to take up the cause of freedom and democracy by publicising this case.

NICK GRIFFIN TRIAL DATE POSTPONED

The state sponsored political trial of Spearhead writer and key party speaker, Nick Griffin for expressing thoughts and ideas that it doesn't like has been postponed until late April for technical reasons.

The delay is good for Nick because the extra time involved will enable him to develop vital defence strategies and flesh out existing defence lines. The delay is also good for another reason. With this trial, the party hopes to capitalise on the publicity angle with regard to the government blatantly persecuting political dissidents here in

What we stand for

- The establishment of a government of national unity that will put an end to nationally divisive party warfare; the return of leadership and statesmanship to British affairs.
- An end to immigration and a start to repatriation.
- British withdrawal from the European Community: trade with Europe where it suits us but no political ties.
- The disbanding of the multi-racial Commonwealth and its replacement by a new Commonwealth of self-governing white states.
- British ownership and control of British industry and resources.
- Protection of British industry by the selective exclusion of foreign manufactured goods from the British market.
- An end to the financial swindle that causes inflation and slump, and its replacement by a sane and fair financial system that will give the people the purchasing power to buy the goods they produce.
- The subordination of the power of the City to the power of Government, and the harnessing of the City to the needs of British industry.
- The regeneration of British farming, with the object of achieving the maximum self-sufficiency in food; also the restoration of the fishing industry by protection of our traditional fishing grounds.
- A healthy environment for a healthy people — the protection of our countryside and an end to the architectural disfigurement of our towns and cities.
- Tougher treatment of criminals, including the return of the death penalty.
- A return to traditional methods of education, with stronger discipline in the classroom and the sacking of 'trendy' teachers.
- An alternative defence strategy: withdrawal from NATO; closure of all foreign military and air bases in Britain; British withdrawal from the war in former Yugoslavia, where no British interest is at stake; the bringing home of British forces from Germany; the strengthening of Britain's defences and a position of armed neutrality.
- An end to overseas aid and the allocation of the money saved to the financing of repatriation and greater help for the needy at home.
- The crushing of the IRA, the termination of the Anglo-Irish agreement and firm support for the loyalist majority in Northern Ireland.
- A return to healthy moral values aimed at strengthening the family and community.
